

- Enjoy the Moroccan accents, evident at the Alcazar palace and the Giralda Tower
- Stay at a hotel which was the home of famous Flamenco guitarist Nino Ricardo
- Flamenco performers dance like no one's watching but it is polite to tip them

By TOM CHESSHYRE FOR THE DAILY MAIL

PUBLISHED: 11:59 BST, 30 March 2019 | UPDATED: 14:57 BST, 1 April 2019

11
shares

3
View comments

With temperatures in the mid-20s and a lively cafe culture, Seville is brilliant to visit now, although it will be busy (with pricey rooms) over Easter and during Feria de Abril festivities a fortnight later.

Yet Andalusia's capital thrives on its buzz — and its flamboyance.

Flamenco dancers perform in the streets near the gothic cathedral. Tapas bars by the Alcazar, the Moorish palace, bustle by midday. Clubs and restaurants are packed at midnight.

Where to stay - Hotel Boutique Elvira Plaza

Like
Daily Mail

Follow
Daily Mail

© Hotel Boutique Elvira Plaza
Seville oranges: A terrace at the Hotel Boutique Elvira Plaza, Seville (above), which is on a lovely square with orange trees and birdsong in the heart of the central Santa Cruz district

On a lovely square with orange trees and birdsong in the heart of the central Santa Cruz district, Elvira Plaza is a design hotel. Rooms are whitewashed, with bright tiles in bathrooms adding some colour — perfect crashpads for a weekend. There's an expensive see-and-be-seen restaurant, but there are plenty of tapas bars nearby.

Room-only doubles from £90; breakfasts £10 extra per person (hotelselviraplaza.com)

Zenit Hoteles

Hidden away in Triana, a neighbourhood that feels less touristy than other parts of Seville (on the opposite side of the Guadalquivir river from the cathedral), Zenit is an oasis of calm. There's a little courtyard with palm trees, flowers and a cafe/bar — plus 126 rooms in neutral colours. Yes, it's a bit of a business hotel, but it's comfortable and cheap. B&B doubles from £90 (sevilla.zenithoteles.com)

SHARE THIS ARTICLE

11 shares

RELATED ARTICLES

Revealed: New York's LaGuardia is the U.S airport most prone...

The golden city that Indian tourism forgot: Escape the...

They're all glass acts! The jaw-dropping Airbnb properties...

Never mind the 'backstop', there's a good deal to be found...

La Casa del Maestro

This is the former house of renowned flamenco guitarist Nino Ricardo (1904-1972); there's a plaque outside in his honour and pictures in reception. The dozen rooms have a homely feel, with each in a different colour (it's worth upgrading to a superior for £17 extra). La Casa is in a little alley, a ten-minute stroll from the cathedral. R&R doubles from £77 (lacasadelmaestro.com)

Airbnb in Triana

Booking an Airbnb is a good idea, given Seville's popularity, especially if travelling with children. Look out for those with five-star ratings such as 'Two-bedroom apartment in historic Triana building', which is in a distinguished 16th-century mansion with a courtyard near Santa Ana Church. It sleeps five. Triana apart from £74 (airbnb.co.uk). Prices can fluctuate.

▶ called 'The Loft'

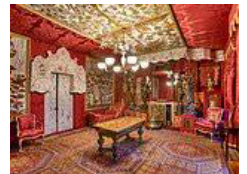

▶ The railway station in Japan that has no entrance or exit - and exists purely so passengers can step off and admire the view

▶ Revealed: Maps of North America's old public transit systems versus the modern day versions, from Los Angeles to Buffalo

▶ Beautiful Guernsey mansion where Victor Hugo penned Les Misérables re-opens after a stunning £3.8million revamp

▶ Welcome to Virgin MiamiCentral: Sir Richard Branson launches his first train service in the U.S - and he gets branded railway stations as part of the deal, too

▶ The incredible Roman bathhouse that was built over 2,000 years ago - and is still up and running today

▶ Delta tops long-running ranking of U.S airlines followed by JetBlue and Southwest

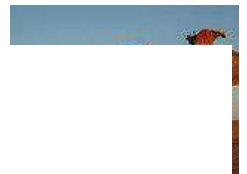

▶ From mighty fortresses to moated country homes: Incredible images capture the majesty of the world's most stunning castles

▶ No wonder Leonardo DiCaprio and Madonna love the White Isle: A former raver revisits Ibiza - and discovers that it's now the perfect destination for a luxury holiday

▶ Meet me at the oasis: Riding a camel across

What to see and do - jump the cathedral queue

Seville behaviour: The largest Gothic cathedral in the world in Seville (above) is a must-see for tourists for the queues can be dreadful. Book online and for just 85p extra so you can saunter to the front. Inside are works by Goya, rocket-like columns, the tomb of Christopher Columbus and altars dripping with gold

Entrance to the biggest gothic cathedral in the world — completed in 1506 — is £7.70. However, queues can be dreadful. Book online and for just 85p extra you can saunter to the front. Inside are works by Goya, rocket-like columns, the tomb of Christopher Columbus and altars dripping with gold. catedraldesevilla.es

Climb the tower

Great city views from the bell chamber of the Giralda, formerly a minaret of a mosque (built in the late 12th century by the Moors). Ascent is included in the cathedral's ticket price, although there is a separate entrance.

Free museum

The Archivo de Indias is housed in an 18th century building just to the south of the cathedral and is free to enter. Up pink marble stairs you come to a hallway with a fine portrait of Columbus, leading to rooms with exhibits featuring documents from the days of the discovery of the New World.

Book the palace online

Built by the Moors, the Alcazar palace is a must with its beautiful tiled courtyards dating from the 8th century, and splendid gardens of palm trees, fountains and passageways. Entrance is £9.85, but queues can be very long. Either go when it opens at 9.30am, or book your ticket online (85p extra) and go straight to the front. alcazarsevilla.org

Free flamenco dancing

On the edge of Avenida de la Constitucion by Archivo de Indias, street flamenco performances are often held by solitary dancers on a makeshift wooden floor. It is courteous to offer a tip.

Picnic by Rio Guadalquivir

The riverfront near the bull ring next to Paseo de Cristobal Colon has shaded benches that make lovely picnic spots.

Where to eat

Bodeguita Romero

▶ As gorgeous as a Van Gogh! Follow the master's footsteps to Arles and discover the sights (and tastes) that inspired him

▶ Six tricks to land a cheap flight - from picking when to book to travelling out on one airline and back on another

▶ Exclusive for MoS readers: From an ancient culture to an ultra-modern city - discover amazing Asia on a tour of Bali and Singapore

▶ Can Malta perform a miracle? After their disastrous previous getaway a mother and her teenage daughter visit Valletta, hoping for a heavenly holiday

▶ Standing up on planes moves a step closer to reality: Manufacturer hones its design of an upright seat passengers

On a corner north of the bull ring, Bodeguita Romero makes a splendid introduction to Seville's tapas scene. Stand by the stainless steel bar, or nab a table and feast on chorizo, anchovies on toast, pork and black pudding rolls, and garlicky spinach with chickpeas — paired with £1.10 beers or £1.80 glasses of wine. Tapas dishes are £2.30. 10 Calle Harinas

Bar las Teresas

Food for thought: Bar las Teresas, above, is a tapas bar close to Alcazar

Another superb tapas bar, close to the Alcazar. Hams hang from the ceiling, pictures of flamenco dancers adorn the walls and waiters squeeze through the throng, balancing trays of delicious little pork-and-potato stews, olives, sliced hams and drinks. It's £1.60 for a glass of wine. Tapas dishes are £2.30. For organised tapas tours, try devoursevillefoodtours.com. 2 Calle Santa Teresa

Bar Bistec

For a taste of local life, this neighbourhood restaurant in Triana — just behind Santa Ana Church — is a winner. Don't go too early: tables are put out in the square at about 8pm. Tomato salads are £3, fried grouper in pesto sauce is £6.80 and a glass of wine £1.70. 34 Calle Pelay Correa

Mercado de Triana

Go to the right-hand corner of the front of this market for breakfast and tuck into a toasted roll with cured ham, coffee and a glass of fresh orange juice for just £5.10. The service is quick. mercadodetrianasevilla.com

TRAVEL FACTS

EasyJet has returns from Gatwick from £76 (easyjet.com). A public bus from the airport to the centre of Seville costs £3.40. For more information about the city, visit spain.info.

- Read more:
- Hotel con parking y piscina en el barrio de Triana | Zenit Sevilla
 - hoteleviraplaza.com
 - Boutique Hotel La Casa del Maestro, Seville, Spain
 - Holiday Rentals, Homes, Experiences & Places - Airbnb
 - devoursevillefoodtours.com
 - Mercado de Triana
 - Home | easyJet.com

▶ difference between them. Here's how to bag the best \(and avoid the worst\)

▶ Fed up with Brexit and endless gloomy news? You need our guide to the remote boltholes, which really are peaceful places to get away from it ALL

▶ Raising the bar in Zanzibar! A chic new resort adds extra zing to Africa's exotic and historic Spice Island

▶ Britain at its best: Thomas Gainsborough's birthplace of Suffolk is as pretty as a picture

ADVERTISEMENT

▶ Munich for under £100

